4) Overlap / duplication (same symbol across accounts)

These names appear in 2+ accounts (not bad, but important for risk sizing):

5) Action framework (Option A / Option B)

Option A — Risk-managed growth (fits 10% drawdown budget)

- Cap any single stock at ~8–10% of the USD bucket; anything above becomes a trim candidate.
- Consolidate overlapping index exposure (avoid owning multiple versions of the same index unless there is a clear reason).
- Keep speculative names in a strict “sandbox” bucket (e.g., 5% total).
- Add exposure only in tranches (2–3 buys) to reduce timing risk.

Option B — Faster growth tilt (higher risk, you choose)

- Allow a higher cap for the top winner (e.g., 12–15%), but enforce a hard stop on total portfolio drawdown.
- Keep more single-name exposure; accept higher volatility and tighter monitoring.

6) Next step (to make sell/buy guidance precise)

- Send: (a) any never-sell tickers, (b) any sectors you want to avoid, (c) whether you want a unified CAD view (requires FX choice).
- If you can export Wealthsimple Activity/Trade History CSV, I can compute realized P/L (FIFO) and “mistakes to fix” (over-trading, chasing, etc.).
